

Ann Prentice Wagner

Ann Prentice Wagner lived in Bethesda for many years and has been a WPC member since about 1990. She is an art historian specializing in prints and drawings who earned her AA in studio art at Montgomery College, Rockville.

She earned degrees in art history from George Washington University, Boston University, and the University of Maryland. Ann has curated at the National Portrait Gallery, the Washington County Museum of Fine Arts, the Smithsonian American Art Museum, and the Arkansas Arts Center (now the Arkansas Museum of Fine Arts).

She has written many articles for Washington Print Club publications in past decades. Ann directed Bradbury Art Museum at Arkansas State University before retiring and moving to Waterville, Maine. There she runs APW Art Curating. She will soon be moving to San Antonio, Texas, which will not keep her away from her beloved DC area friends and the WPC.
